

Say goodbye to the summer in style

Cling on to your fake tan at STRIP...

It's the final bank holiday of the summer and we're staring down the barrel of autumn. What's a girl to do? Get tanned and party like it's July while you still can.

The ultimate pick-me-up comes by way of LA based South Seas whose products tan the limbs of anyone who's anyone (and Paris Hilton). In the UK, STRIP boutique – the pseudo kinky waxing and lingerie chain that garners lingering looks from male passers-by – is offering South Seas tans at many of its branches around London, at Oxford Street's Topshop and Harvey Nichols Bristol.

It's paraben-free, fast-drying and lasts a good five days before starting to mottle. The beauticians take care buffing you down before the tan and hose-drying you afterwards so there's none of that lingering stickiness.

Tans cost £30 and you can find your nearest STRIP boutique here
